Graduate School Transfer to a Different Degree Program Policy

For a student to transfer from one department to another requires that the student be in good academic standing, a new application for admission and the usual application fee. Changes in application status (master's to doctoral, doctoral to master's) or enrollment status (master's to doctoral or doctoral to master's) must be requested by the applicant/student involved and endorsed by the department head or chair, major professor, and advisory committee for enrolled students and approved by the dean of the Graduate School. Current international students must recertify full financial sponsorship for the issuance of a new I-20 form.
